SUPPORT A FRIEND:

If a friend discloses an incident of sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, or stalking:

- Give them your full attention and listen without judgement.
- Identify any immediate safety concerns; call 911 if needed.
- Acknowledge the difficulty it takes to disclose – “Thank you for telling me” is a great way to start.
- Encourage them to contact on-campus resources, including a VPVA at 848-932-1181 (available 24/7).
- Remind them that the incident can also be reported to the Title IX Office and/or local law enforcement, such as RUPD.
- Avoid giving advice. Allow your friend to make their own decision on how to proceed.
- Ask for help. You do not have to handle this alone. The Title IX Office and VPVA are here to help you too.

REPORT AN INCIDENT:

If you or a friend experience sexual harassment, sexual assault, dating violence, or stalking, we encourage you to report it to the university and learn about your options. You can report to:

The Office for Violence Prevention and Victim Assistance

(VPVA):

848-932-1181

- Contact VPVA 24/7 for a confidential conversation that will not be reported to the Title IX Office. VPVA offers a range of services to assist survivors with the aftermath of victimization, including counseling, personal and academic advocacy, legal and medical accompaniment, and information on replacing lost or stolen property.

The Title IX Office:

848-932-8200

- The Title IX Office is committed to facilitating equitable response and resolution to all reported incidents of sexual misconduct among Rutgers students. The Title IX Office serves to respond to, investigate, and resolve reported misconduct. They can also help connect students with resources and provide supportive measures such as academic or housing accommodations.

Rutgers University Police Department (RUPD):

911 (emergency)

732-932-7211 (non-emergency)

- Students should report an incident to RUPD if they are interested in pursuing a criminal or civil process. RUPD can also help obtain restraining orders and provide safety escorts to students on or near campus.
